

Restricted players by weight to the offensive line.

In atom because there are only 3 interior line positions. Players that have been deemed to be over the weight limit and subject to an ineligible offensive line position must play guard or center. Because some teams have more than 6 players that are over the weight limit a team may also have two tackles that take up the tight end position, with a balanced line. These players must report as ineligible and should wear a number from 50-70. No restricted player can become a ball carrier or receiver at any time.

For PeeWee Restricted players can play offensive center, guard or tackle. Players can play any position on kick off or kick off return. Because we consider punts, PA and field goals offensive plays, restricted players must be in an offensive line position. If a restricted player is a punter or kicker, if the ball is not kicked the ball will be turned over on downs and the defensive team will get the ball at PLS or PBD.

These are new rules that have been updated for 2023. All new rules will be monitored and may be subject to change.
